COMPLETE FIRE & SECURITY SOLUTIONS

Providing the best solutions for face recognition and temperature detection

“The current COVID-19 crisis has highlighted the essential role of the security and safety sectors”

The COVID-19 virus has presented a huge global challenge and a race to innovate solutions or adapt existing technologies to mitigate the spread of the virus.

Infrared or thermal imaging is highlighted for its suitability to protect essential workers by measuring body temperature and indicating potential victims of a virus.

Our technologies combined with other measures can be used to provide an additional layer of defence to minimise the spread of a virus. They are helpful for screening but do not specifically detect the COVID-19 virus itself or provide an actual diagnosis.

Face Recognition & Temperature Detection Access Control Terminal

SCUTUM's Face Recognition Access Control Terminal offers digital detection, face recognition and access control with precise recognition rate, large storage capacity and rapid recognition.

The terminal integrates face recognition and non-contact temperature detection technology. The digital detection module supports rapid body temperature detection. The terminal flags if an abnormal body temperature is detected. It has wide application in public spaces, schools, office buildings, transportation hubs, hospitals, hotels and other important areas.

Non-contact detection of wrist temperature

Supports personnel information binding

Configurable temperature detection threshold

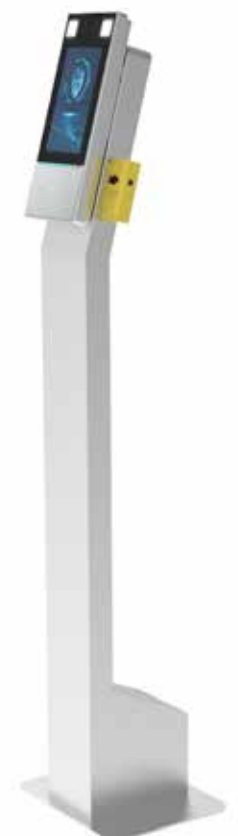

Deep learning algorithm face recognition

Supports video capture and ONVIF protocol

Face, card, password and QR code authentication

Two-way audio with indoor monitor

Tamper protection

Complete Fire & Security Solutions
